Hunt Construction Group hosted a golf tournament for its business partners, suppliers and subcontractors on June 4 at The Tribute in The Colony. The weather offered a perfect day for golf, and the generosity shown by the participants provided a fabulous day for Assistance League of Greater Collin County.

“Hunt has sponsored a golf tournament to benefit a charity for nine years, and this year’s event yielded the largest dollar amount ever awarded to the selected charity”, according to Jack Sovern, Hunt Construction Vice President. For Assistance League, Nancy Naigle, Vice President, Resource Development, praised the generosity of Hunt and its partners for their contributions. “We’ve all read the news about how some construction-related businesses are suffering from the economic downturn, and it’s truly amazing at the outpouring of generosity from Hunt and its partners in this financial environment.”

Hunt Construction Group is a 65-year old national contractor/construction manager, with a local office in Dallas for over 30 years.

Assistance League is a philanthropic organization which conducts six programs in Collin County. Under the largest program, Operation School Bell®, the organization provided new clothing to over 1500 elementary school children in five Collin County school districts. The previous year, Assistance League clothed over 1600 children. “We expect the need in the community to continue at this level or to grow considering the economic conditions, and this incredible generosity from Hunt and its partners will be a tremendous asset in ensuring we can help those in need,” said Naigle. Assistance League also conducts literacy program for children, a program for seniors, distributes magazines at Texas Health Presbyterian Hospital Plano and provides memory boxes for grieving parents.
